The prudent housewife, or Compleat English cook

THE PRUDENT HOUSEWIFE and the fat will easily part from the lean; but if fold, it will stick by skin and strings. The flesh of few mutton is paler than wether mutton, is easier parted, and has a closer grain. When the flesh has a pallid whiteness, inclining to yellow, and is loose at the bone, you have reason to expect it is being rotten, or inclining that way. To know whether it is new or stale, observe the direction
